Dear Parents/Carers

NSPCC 'Let's Talk PANTS'

You may have seen these NSPCC adverts on the television recently. During the next few weeks we will be using the NSPCC's PANTS rules and materials with the children—they fit in with what we already do in talking to the children about how to stay safe. There is a good range of age related resources available for school and home—we will also be introducing 'Pantosaurus' the friendly dinosaur who will help to get the message across.

Please be aware that we will be using the correct names for parts of the body i.e. penis and vagina, but will introduce the vocabulary in a sensitive, age appropriate manner. The children need to understand that 'privates' is not the name of these parts but that they are private.

If you google nspcc pants you will find lots of information.
